
Built-in stabilisers reduce the amplitude of the business cycle around potential output